Apollo Health Street and GloStream Team to Support GloStream Products

Conshohocken, Penn. – Apollo Health Street, a provider of world-class information technology to the nation's healthcare organizations, and gloStream, an electronic medical record and practice management software provider, today announced a new partnership in which Apollo Health Street will make its services available to gloStream's national network of technology partners. Apollo's services are an additional option for gloStream partners who wish to supplement their support services.

"gloStream builds comprehensive and user-friendly EMR and PM applications for physicians, and we're glad to collaborate with them to maximize the application's capabilities for the physicians who rely on it," said Dan Walsh, senior vice president of information technology for Apollo Health Street. "Our team of healthcare and IT experts will offer gloStream's clients around-the-clock, cost-efficient support so that business processes and patient care continue uninterrupted."

Apollo Health Street's IT services offer a single point of contact for all technical support of gloStream's products and solutions, which are the only ones on the market embedded with Microsoft Office®. Apollo Health Street has already begun support for two gloStream clients, including one in Rochester, NY.

"We're constantly looking for unique strategic partners who can augment our resellers' offerings," said Mike Sappington, gloStream's chief executive officer. "Apollo offers a robust set of support options that can help our channel provide even more value to the physicians they serve."

"Smart EMR and PM technology is increasingly critical to the healthcare industry, and we are eager to work with gloStream to make an already-excellent product work even better for healthcare industry leaders and clinicians across the country," added Andrew DeVoe, chief executive officer for Apollo Health Street.
